Sustainability Champion - Student Indy Sira

About the project

Summary

President of Enactus Warwick, Indy Sira has worked tirelessly and passionately with her team to initiate and deliver a wide range of social projects. Sustainability is at the heart of Indy's work, which has included reducing food waste, helping refugees and asylum seekers to develop employability skills and improving sanitation standards for women as far away as India.

The results

Volunteering as the President of Enactus Warwick, Indy Sira has worked tirelessly and passionately with her team to initiate and deliver a wide range of social projects. Sustainability is at the heart of Indy's work.

She's worked on reducing food waste, via "Food Intercept", helping refugees and asylum seekers to develop employability skills through "The Gateway", and providing access to and education about sanitary-ware for women in rural India through "Project Baala". Indy and her team deserve recognition for all their hard and valuable work.

These projects simply wouldn't have happened without Indy being the driving force behind this fantastic team. Indy has been a true champion for sustainability, proactively bringing all these ideas to fruition through her admirable, unwavering and tenacious leadership.

The future

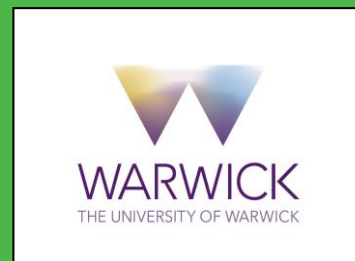

Top 3 learnings from implementing your project

1. The importance of creating sustainable solutions to pressing issues within the local community
2. The positive long-term and wide-reaching impact your actions can have on the lives of man
3. Collaboration and social innovation play a vital role in creating sustainable initiatives within the community.

What has it meant to your institution to be a Green Gown Award finalist?

"Indy and the Enactus team are doing exemplary work in delivering solutions to global social issues. The enthusiasm our students have shown in improving the quality of living for others in our global community is inspiring. Indy and her team deserve this Award in recognition of the impact they've had."

Vice Chancellor and President of the University of Warwick, Prof. Stuart Croft
